Attempts to outperform equities and fixed income over complete market cycles by primarily deploying leveraged convertible bonds.

Convertible bonds combine the fixed income features of bonds, with the capital appreciation potential of stocks. The Miller Convertible Plus Fund may offer investors a measure of downside preservation compared to stocks and additional upside participation compared with traditional bonds. The goal of the Fund is to primarily deploy leveraged convertible bonds to outperform both equity and fixed income investments over complete market cycles.

A Unique Blend

Convertible bonds blend the characteristics of both bond and stock investments. Convertibles seek to provide equity like returns due to the equity component with potentially less volatility due to their bond-like features.

Long-term diversification potential

Convertible bonds may be a good option for investors whose goal is to diversify their portfolio across multiple asset classes.

Experienced Investment Approach

The Fund's investment advisor holds over 20 years of experience with its multi-step approach to convertible bond analysis, focused on the issuer's credit-worthiness and financial statement fundamentals.

- Morningstar rankings do not include the effect of a fund's sales load, if applicable. Other share classes may have different performance characteristics. Morningstar rankings are based on a fund's 1-year total return relative to all funds in the Morningstar category. Fund performance used within the rankings, reflects certain fee waivers, without which returns and Morningstar rankings would have been lower. The highest (on most favorable) percentile rank is 1 and the lowest (or least favorable) rank is 100. The top-performing fund in a category will always receive a rank of 1. The Miller Plus Fund was ranked 51 out of 95 funds for the 1 year return as of 6/30/2017.

About Convertible Bonds

Convertible bonds can be ideal investments for absolute return long-term investors, through both bull & bear markets. Convertibles can offer equity market exposure while maintaining the conservative characteristics of bonds. Convertible bonds may outperform equities and bonds over complete market cycles.

BREAKDOWN BY SECTOR⁵

- Portfolio holdings are subject to change and are not investment advice.
- As of 6-30-17 Top 10 Industries, Sector Weights and Effective Maturity Breakdown are calculated as a percentage of portfolio assets. The tables exclude cash & equivalents. Synthetic convertible bonds are issued by a financial institution and are convertible into shares of another company; these are classified according to the company they are convertible into rather than the issuer.
- Average Weighted Price: weighting the maturity of each security in the portfolio by the market value of the security, then averaging these weighted figures. Average Effective Maturity: an average of all the maturities of the bonds in a portfolio, computed by weighting each bond’s effective maturity by the market value of the security. Effective Maturity: a measure of the anticipated date of complete payment of a bond’s principal that incorporates the effects of optional maturity dates for bonds with put or prepayment features.

About Risk

Investments in convertible securities subject the Fund to the risks associated with both fixed-income securities, including credit risk and interest risk, and common stocks. A portion of the Fund’s convertible securities may be rated below investment grade. Exchangeable and synthetic convertible securities may be more volatile and less liquid than traditional convertible securities. In general, stock and other equity security values fluctuate, and sometimes widely fluctuate, in response to activities specific to the company as well as general market, economic and political conditions. Lower rated fixed-income securities are subject to greater risk of loss of income and principal than higher-rated securities. The prices of lower rated bonds are likely to be more sensitive to adverse economic changes or individual corporate developments. All fixed-income securities are subject to two types or risk: credit risk and interest rate risk. When the general level of interest rates goes up, the prices of most fixed-income securities go down. When the general level of interest rates goes down, the prices of most fixed income securities go up. The Fund may invest a significant amount of its assets in a particular industry, market, or sector. The value of its shares may be more susceptible to adverse changes within that market or sector than a Fund that does not focus its investments.

Leverage Disclosure

The use of leverage through activities such as borrowing can magnify the effects of changes in the value of the Fund and make the Fund’s share price more volatile and sensitive to market movements. Because leverage increases the fees payable to the adviser, Wellesley has an incentive to increase the Fund’s use of leverage.
